Precautionary Water Boiling Advisory Lifted for West Jordan Neighborhood

West Jordan, UT (June 13, 2018) — The City of West Jordan has lifted the precautionary water boil advisory that was put into effect for the Sienna Vista neighborhood June 11. Two separate rounds of water testing have been conducted. The results for both tests are in and show the water to be free from contaminants and bacteria.

The water is safe for consumption and use. It meets and/or exceeds state and federal water quality standards.

West Jordan’s Water Division discovered the connection Monday afternoon and immediately severed the connection. A precautionary boil water advisory was distributed Monday at about 5 p.m. to 150 homes in the area, although only 11 homes were potentially directly impacted.

The boil advisory that was issued was precautionary and put into effect until two separate sets of water sample results came back from an independent lab. Both sample sets are clean and show no contamination. Because no contamination occurred, those who received the notice can disregard the flushing and cleaning guidelines from the initial precautionary boiling advisory notice.

We would like to apologize for any inconvenience or concern residents may have experienced. West Jordan’s Water Division tests about 100 samples each month to ensure the city’s drinking water is safe. Our Water Division’s top priority is to provide a safe and dependable water supply. We would like to thank our residents for their patience while we investigated a possible cross-connection contamination.
